County Agrees to Fire Contract

Work for Special Week

Claiborn Crain, left, and Laura Plank show one of two signs which will be erected on highways coming into the county this week in observance of National 4-H Week. Claiborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cristler Crain, lives south of Canyon on a Grade A dairy farm. His club projects now are swine and dairy. Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Plank, lives northwest of Canyon on an irrigated farm specializing in production of small grains, sorghums and beef cattle. She has clothing and foods as projects.

County Observance of 4-H Week Includes Highway Sign Erection

National 4-H Club week will be observed by the 4-H Clubs in Randall County by the erection of two signs on Highways 60 and 87 entering the county from the west and south.

Other signs will be made and erected at a later date on other highways and major roads entering the county.

The special week has been proclaimed by the governor, and the 117,257 club members in the state will be explaining this week what the 4-H program does. The program of the clubs is designed to help those participating to prepare themselves to become leaders in the world of tomorrow.

The members call the training four square development and it is symbolized by the familiar four leaf clover with an "H" in each leaf. The letters stand for Head, Heart, Hands and Health.

Randall County has 140 boys and girls enrolled in 4-H work. Their ages run from nine through 21 years.

The 4-H organization has been active in Randall County for more than 30 years. Directing the work in the county are John Brazzil, county agent, and Mrs. Mona Hildreth, home demonstration agent.

Mr. and Mrs. George Albers visited in the Loys Knox home in Dumas Sunday. Roxie Lee Knox returned home with the Albers for a week's visit.

Wet Spell Total Up To 1.51 Inches

An additional .40 of an inch of moisture fell on Canyon during the past week to bring the wet-spell total to 1.51 inches.

The biggest shower was last Friday night when a total of .30 of an inch was measured. An additional .07 fell Saturday afternoon.

Drizzle, showers and a little light snow Monday and Monday night brought an additional .03 of an inch.

Higdon Named Acting Postmaster Replacing Guy Harp in Canyon

Marion Higdon, assistant postmaster in Canyon since 1952, was named acting postmaster effective March 1 to replace Guy Harp, who refired as postmaster on that date.

Higdon was named to the acting position when E. W. Glenn, who had been offered the permanent position, declined to accept the appointment. No date has been set when a permanent postmaster may be named.

Higdon said that the position can be filled in two ways, through a non-competitive examination within the postal system or through a competitive examination open to all applicants. In the non-competitive examination route, only those who are actually in the postal service may take the test or be considered for appointment.

The acting postmaster started in the postal system as a substitute clerk on April 16, 1936. He was appointed a regular clerk on Nov. 16, 1939. On May 1, 1952, Higdon was made assistant postmaster.

Harp had been postmaster in Canyon since Sept. 1, 1934, when he was appointed to replace Oscar Hunt. He had served as Canyon's postmaster for 22½ years.

The first Post Office in Canyon was designated in 1889, and L. G. Conner, the founder of Canyon, was the first postmaster. He established the office in his home, a dugout located south of the present courthouse.

In 1891, Conner resigned and Mrs. S. V. Wirt was appointed in his place. She moved the Post Office to a small building located about where the Legion Hall is now.

Later, the Post Office was moved

The high school observance will also be Thursday with the Canyon Christian Youth Council directing activities.

Paving Stalled On Cattle Guards

Drafting of a contract to establish county responsibility for Canyon Volunter fire equipment being used outside the city limits of Canyon was ordered Monday afternoon by the Randall County Commissioners Court following a joint meeting with the Canyon City Commission.

The contract, to be prepared by Criminal Dist. Atty. A. W. Lair, will have the effect of allowing the Canyon fire department to resume answering calls from outside the city limits. The practice was ordered stopped by the Canyon City Commission on Feb. 21 when they learned that the mayor and commissioners would be personally liable for any accident that might occur to a fire truck while it was on a country call.

So that a call to a serious fire in the country could be answered while the contract was being prepared, Fire Chief Bill Sternenberg and City Commissioner Paul Lindsey purchased liability insurance policies that would allow them to drive fire trucks outside the city limits. The premiums were paid out of their own pockets.

Mayor Hosea Foster explained the need for the contract with the county at the joint meeting, and the county commissioners agreed that such a contract should be executed so that the personal liability could be lifted from the city officials.

Lair told the commissioners that the contract would stipulate that the county would pay the fire department $1 per man who went on each country call, as has already been the practice, and that the remainder of the contract would be a series of "hold harmless" clauses to give the county responsibility for any accidents.

The county and city commissioners discussed the possibility of obtaining joint liability insurance so that the premium rate would be lower, and decided to investigate the idea further. At present, the city has workmen's compensation which would cover accidents to the firemen, but does not carry liability insurance on the equipment.

Foster said that the city does not have the same degree of liability for accidents as an individual citizen has. He said the county has somewhat the same situation.

The contract to be executed will be modeled on one between the City of Midland and Ector County, which was approved by the state Attorney General.

In other business, the county commission received a letter from District Highway Engineer Chili Smith asking that negotiations between the county and the U. S. Forestry Service be reopened to do away with two cattle guards on the proposed farm-to-market road from Buffalo Lake south to the Castro County line.

The letter said that plans for the road have been completed and forwarded to Austin, but the Austin office had asked that the cattle guards be eliminated. It said that highway department policy requires that no cattle guards cross paved highways which are not local roads.

The new paved highway will not be a local road, since it extends some 90 miles to the south, the letter said. The Austin office had ordered that the cattle guards be eliminated and that the Forest Service property be fenced. The letter said a stock pass could be constructed.

Smith's letter said the contract for the paving cannot be let until the matter has been cleared up.

Open Baseball Season June 3

June 3 was set as the starting date for the Randall County Little League Association baseball schedule this summer by the board of directors at a meeting Monday night.

The directors did not set a date for the player call, but indicated it would probably be the early part of May.

Rex Reeves, principal of the Canyon elementary school, told the directors that 138 boys between the ages of 9 and 12 who attend schools in Canyon have shown interest in Little League ball. He said the figures included all those who are in the elementary school and junior high here, but did not include any boys who attend the Umbarger school, or any of the other schools in the county.

A. W. Lair reported that the application for a state charter is ready to send to the Secretary of State.

Salk Shot Seekers

At times last Friday, the crowds really got thick at both Neblett Hospital and the Medical and Dental clinic as more than 1500 got Salk shots in a program sponsored by Westside HD.

1500 Get Shots; Second Due Mar. 21

The mass inoculation day for polio vaccine was successful beyond all expectations according to doctors and nurses at the Medical and Dental Clinic and Neblett Hospital.

A total of 1567 people registered Feb. 28; 936 received shots at the hospital and 631 received shots at the clinic. Of the 936 people registered at the hospital, 470 were 20 years or older. The clinic listed 306 persons 20 and older.

Men over 20 years of age totaled 319. This was the group of which only a small percentage had started the vaccine series according to doctors' reports.

Mrs. Ray Metcalf, president of the Westside Home Demonstration Club which sponsored the mass inoculation, and Mrs. Lewis Harvey, past president of the club, were the registrars at the clinic.

The second inoculation day will be March 21, and again the price will be $1. Those who have received their second shot may receive their third shot at this time at the special rate. Several received second and third shots Feb. 28.

Wilbanks Resignation Makes Lowes New Chamber of Commerce Prexy

M. L. Sherrod will replace the Rev. Wilbanks on the board of directors. The Rev. Wilbanks, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, moved to Amarillo to become associate minister of Westminster Presbyterian Church effective March 1.

He tendered his resignation from the chamber of commerce in a letter to Chamber Manager Roland Black Monday. The letter said:

"This is to convey to the Board of Directors of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce my resignation both as a member of the Board and as President. I regret the necessity of this action in many ways, for I have enjoyed more than I can say the association I have had with the other members of the Board.

"I appreciate deeply the confidence manifested in me in being named to the Board and in my temporary service as President.

"I shall follow the work of the Board with great interest and shall pray for its success in all good things."

Amarillo has grown from a big old cow town that many of you knew only a few years ago into a real-and-true big city, showing all the aspects of a city that Dallas does. The people up there are faced with problems that just won't occur anywhere else in the Panhandle.

The city-size problems that plague Amarillo are worsened because the city spills out of one county into another. In order to solve many of their problems, especially those dealing with public health and safety, the people of Amarillo must gain the cooperation of the governing bodies of two counties.

To hear some people tell it, Randall County is out to stall deliberately any social progress that is started in Amarillo. You'd think that someone had it in for Amarillo when the county lines were drawn way back yonder in the 1800's.

Under the laws of the state, a county government has direct control of practically all the functions of public health and safety. A city can pass ordinances regulating the actions of their citizens in those areas, but the ordinances have no effect outside the city limits—the city could do little about an open sewer that is two feet outside the limits without gaining the cooperation of the county government.

During the past three or four years, a series of citizen's committees have been established in Amarillo to study the needs of the city, and the committees have been made up of people who live in both Randall and Potter counties. Some members of the committees have been appointed from Canyon, also.

Those committees have made extensive surveys using professional services and have come up with what they believe to be the best solutions to the problems of Amarillo. At one time or another the biggest part of those solutions have been published in the Amarillo papers, but it would take a lot of reading and remembering to have a good grasp of them.

Those citizens committees have tried to implement their recommendations, which, for the most party, require the action of both Potter and Randall County Commissioners Courts as well as action by the Amarillo City Commission. Each time, the action has been stalled by the Randall County Commissioners Court.

Randall's commissioners are not trying to kill Amarillo's progress—far from it. Last week, when Lewis Dodson, chairman of the Potter-Randall Counties Citizens Health Council, criticized the Randall commissioners for asking that the county be left off a proposed hospital district bill in the legislature, he found the reason for the lack of cooperation. Reading the rest of his statement, it's easy to see he didn't recognize his discovery, though.

Dodson said, "Perhaps the Randall County commissioners and the Randall residents do not understand the proposed legislation."

The commissioners most likely do not understand—but they have never been presented with an adequate explanation of what Amarillo is trying to do. They were confronted with a copy of legislation that had been considered by a state senate committee and reported out favorably, a bill that would call for the addition of 20 cents tax per hundred dollar valuation on all county taxpayers to support a hospital district for Amarillo and a joint juvenile court for Randall and Potter Counties.

The governing body of Randall County had not asked for permission to establish a joint court with anyone. It had not asked for permission to pay any money to someone else for a hospital. Consequently, they requested that Randall County be left off the bill.

I feel that might not have happened if the commissioners had known ahead of time what legislation would be introduced, and if they had been given a chance to express their sentiments. They weren't, at least not recently.

Whose fault is it that the commissioners haven't been consulted and briefed? I don't know for sure, but I expect a bit of the fault lies on both sides of Amarillo's 58th Street. The heads of the citizens committees haven't been too eager to appear before the Randall commissioners and the Randall commissioners haven't been too eager to hear the citizens committee representatives.

It's time to stop that. Randall's commissioners should seek joint meetings with the Potter commissioners, the Amarillo city commission, and with representatives of the various citizens committees. At those meetings, present problems, proposed solutions and future planning could be discussed. The Amarillo people could be told of the problems that Randall County has outside Amarillo.

From a series of joint meetings, which should be made periodical, a better understanding would develop, and some of the present bickering could be put aside.

I believe that Randall County should be the first to ask for the meetings.

Here's an example of what can happen when governing bodies don't get together to discuss mutual problems.

A couple of weeks ago, the Canyon city commission found that the mayor and city commissioners could be personally liable for things that happen to fire trucks outside the city limits unless the county commissioners had assumed responsibility by contract. The city commission ordered that the volunteer fire department cease answering country calls until such a contract was negotiated.

Instead of appearing before the county commissioners at the next meeting of the court, the city commission sent a copy of the contract by the city secretary to the county judge.

The city commission did not explain the problem to the county commissioners, nor did they ask that a contract be signed. Consequently, the county commissioners did not take up the contract for consideration. For more than a week the country areas of the county have been without fire protection. Luckily there have been no alarms.

If the city commission had taken the contract to the county court, explained why it was needed and asked that it be signed, it most likely would have been—that would have been that. It doesn't take much to gain cooperation.

If you can, recall the dude of yester-year who smoked coffin nails, parted his hair in the middle, hung a hard-boiled derby on the back of his head, wore toothpick shoes, celluloid collar and a red vest with a two-foot watch chain draped across the front of it.

Now picture this thing standing in a languid pose, shoving his hands in his pockets, throwing back his shoulders slightly, half-closing his eyes and assuming a nonchalant air of boredom.

Wonder what our jean-clad teenagers would think of a specimen of this kind?

In my travels with my father when I was a boy, there were two kinds of hotels: American plan and European plan. I didn't know the difference: that the rate at an American plan hotel included meals and, at a European plan hotel, the rate was only for the room.

I thought it was the patriotic thing to do to stop at an American plan hotel.

There were three towns in a row in Northeast Arkansas on the Cotton Belt Railroad with newspapers so oddly named that you could search all the rest of the United States and not find three names as peculiar.

They were the Rector Vitascope, the Paragould Soliphone and the Marmaduke Cackler.

Alas, however, the Cackler cackled its last, long ago.

During excitement—or, to be more exact, when scared—a man can perform feats that, ordinarily, would be far beyond his power. There was a young man of average size and physique who worked in a gasoline plant in West Texas, many years back. One day, there was an explosion. He was out in the open at the time and he headed for the gate but a truck blocked the way. So he headed for the fence.

It was a wire fence with a strand of barbed wire on top. It was six feet high. That would be a good leap for a trained athlete in the pink of condition but this man cleared that six-foot fence and didn't get a scratch.

Several Eastland boosters were trying to get a widow and her two sons to move there, back in the 1920's. The fact that the boys were remarkable football players was only a coincidence.

The youths were shown the different features and attractions of the town. You will never guess the one that was the clincher. They were taken into the five-story Eastland County courthouse and were given their first ride on an elevator.

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Federal Aid to Education

Federal aid to the school systems of this country will be one of the hot domestic issues in this session of Congress. You will recall that last year a federal aid bill was approved by the Education and Labor Committee but failed of passage through the House of Representatives because of the highly controversial Powell Amendment.

This amendment would have, in effect, denied any aid to a state wherein segregation was practiced in the schools. The amendment was offered with full knowledge on the part of its author that the bill would probably be defeated if the amendment was adopted.

President Eisenhower tried to prevail upon all parties to pass the federal aid legislation without crippling amendments. He has again asserted his belief in federal aid to education and has asked that legislation be passed to implement such a program.

It is rumored in some circles that the President will be able to dissuade Congressman Powell from offering his amendment again this year. This thinking is undoubtedly based upon the fact that Congressman Powell, although registered as a Democrat in New York, campaigned vigorously for the re-election of Mr. Eisenhower. His major campaign activities were among those of his own race in many parts of the country.

Many of the strong advocates of federal aid to education feel that the bill can be passed if it does not contain the Powell integration amendment. They also feel that this will not jeopardize the eventual adoption of the Powell Amendment, but will only delay it for a year or two.

Such thinking is, of course, in direct conflict with the argument that you can have federal aid to education without federal control of education. Many people would support federal aid to education if there was some safeguard against federal control, but it is difficult to conceive in reality a program financed by a source that does not seek and demand control of at least a part of the policy-making machinery.

Numerous plans and schemes have been advanced as the answer to the dilemma. However, when these are carefully weighed, we always come back to the same proposition that "he who pays the fiddler should have the right to call the tunes."

The bitter opponents of this type of legislation fully realize that the present plan of attack by the federal aid supporters is a foot-in-the-door proposition. In other words, the opponents feel that the supporters are willing to take any kind of a bill so long as it sets up a basic federal aid to education program, planning of course to make such changes in the program later as will be necessary to have full control of it from Washington.

There are many, many school districts in this country that need and could use substantial sums of money. However, i tis my suggestion that it would be well for them to weigh very carefully the price that may be exacted for these funds. The price that they are required to pay for the money may not be confined to interest alone.

Civil Rights

Another highly controversial issue will be the so-called Civil Rights legislation that was so viciously attacked in the Truman Administration, but which has been so graciously embraced by this Administration.

The bills that are presently under consideration by the Committees are nothing less than quasi-legal monstrosities; and I blush when I use the word "legal." They are permeated with platitudes, generalities, violent presumptions, unfounded accusations, and threats of enforcement that make them appear more like the mouthings of an old-time 4th of July political orator who had more interest in appealing to the crowd he was addressing than he did in what his remarks meant.

The sinister thing about this old approach is that it is a departure from definitive language that has always been necessary in sound and basic law, which is bad enough in itself, but it goes further and establishes the nucleus of a federal police system that could very easily obliterate the personal privacy of the individual and the sanctity of the home that we, as free people, have always cherished dearly.

It could be another step toward complete centralization of power that will utterly destroy this nation as a democracy.

The other evening it was my pleasure to attend a dinner at which "Dan" Daniel, National Commander of the American Legion, delivered a brilliant address. In it he referred to the remarks of President Eisenhower just four years ago as follows: "If the states lose their meaning, our entire system of government loses its meaning, and the next step is the rise of the centralized national state in which the seeds of autocracy can take root and grow."

Let us all hope and pray that the President awakens to the fact that the above warning cannot be effective if the national Administration is to "preach states rights and practice policies of centralized government."

THIS ONE IS OBVIOUS

A tramp knocked on the door of an English inn named "George and the Dragon."

"Can you spare a poor man a bite to eat?" he asked the landlady.

"No!" she shouted, and then slammed the door.

After a few minutes he knocked again, and when the landlady reappeared, he said, "Now, could I have a few words with George?"

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

A five-member House committee will search for the factors that put ICT Insurance Co. on the rocks.

ICT now is in temporary receivership. But its management still hoped to raise some $1,500,000 to salvage the company. Its assets are estimated at $3,325,000; its liabilities at $4,350,000.

Most of the firm's 14,000 stockholders are union labor members. They invested some $7,000,000 in it after the State Federation of Labor entered into a management contract with BenJack Cage in 1951.

Labor leaders say they later found out that Cage dissipated the company funds in a long series of unsound promotions and bad risk insurance. His contract was terminated in 1955, and the company is still pressing a claim for $1,800,000 against him.

James G. Cage, a distant cousin of BenJack, was made president in January, 1956, and "tightened management" was instituted. By the middle of last year the company had begun to show a profit — though not enough to offset liabilities carried over from prior management.

James G. Cage said he felt it is still possible to put the company on its feet and prevent loss to its thousands of small-income stockholders.

On the heels of these disclosures came a rash of new insurance regulation bills in both House and Senate. Several would provide tighter restrictions on company officials handling funds and stiff penalties for mis-handling.

Among the proposed regulatory measures are two bills by the Texas Press Association. One calls for published financial reports of all insurance firms doing business in Texas. The other calls for fine and imprisonment for making a false report to the insurance commission. Rep. Jack Welch of Marlin has introduced these two bills. They are among 15 "Better Government" proposals made by TPA.

Oil Production Upped

More oil for Europe, more revenue for the state treasury are in prospect.

Texas Railroad Commission set the March allowable at 3,733,054 barrels a day on an 18-day production pattern. It is an all-time high, an increase of nearly 211,000 barrels per day.

Coupled with the 35-cent per barrel price increase in gasoline, the greater production, if continued, could bring an additional $10,000,000 a year into Texas tax coffers.

Independent producers, who have battled the major companies' drive for higher allowables, did not contest the March quota.

They claimed, however, that major companies still are "misusing" much crude oil by refining it into gasoline, unneeded here and unwanted abroad. And independents still have marketing problems, they said, renewing the charge that major buyers have denied them sufficient pipeline connections to their wells.

Rains Came

Crop prospects were described as "best in five years" after gentle, soaking rains fell over most of the state.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture's weekly report reflected the brightened picture almost border to border. Cotton planting under way in the valley. Revived wheat and oats on the plains. Lush, new pasture grass in the north and the northwest.

And some areas even reported it was "too wet to plough."

It was so good it scared some people. John C. White, State Agriculture Commissioner, wired Washington to the effect that one rain does not break a seven-year drouth. It will be a long time, he said, before the soil is restored and drouth aid is still needed.

New Teacher Pay Bill

A counter-proposal to the $399-a-year teacher pay raise bill has been introduced by Rep. Harold B. Parish of Taft.

It would give a $606 a year raise and remove some 900 school counselors and supervisors from state support. His plan would cost some $400,000 a year less than the other, said Parish.

School Bills Abound

A number of other Legislative proposals would effect changes in the public school setup. Among them:

1. A suggested constitutional amendment creating a Public School Building Authority. It would build school buildings and lease them to the districts. Some districts can't afford expansion demands, said the sponsor, Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene.
2. A constitutional amendment permitting broader investment of the permanent school fund. It would follow lines approved by voters last November for the University fund. A safe way to get more income from the $320,000,000 endowment, said its author, Rep. Scott McDonald of Fort Worth.
3. A detailed survey of the entire educational system. Rep. Wade Spilman of McAllen in a report on the House Investigating Committee's work said that local boards are losing control. "Padding" of statistics to obtain more state aid is not uncommon, he said.

Calvin Coolidge wrote a history of the United States in five hundred words.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

The technicians of the Soil Conservation Service assisting the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District have helped the following farmers with the following practices: Calvin C. Casey has completed 20 acres of land leveling on his farm seven miles northeast of Canyon. Casey is a cooperator with the district.

W. T. Smoot Sr. is at the present time constructing standard terraces on his farm five miles south of Pullman Switch. These terraces will have about a 20 foot base with a height of 1.3 feet. The purpose of these terraces is to break up the flow of water down the slope. Smoot is building these terraces himself. Smoot became a cooperator with the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District last month.

John Currie has completed a farm pond on his ranch 10 miles northeast of Canyon. This pond was built in a lake and will hold close to six acre feet of water. These ponds are constructed below ground with the dirt stock piled on the sides. Slopes of the pond are constructed flat enough for cattle to get in and out of the pond. These ponds will not drain the lake, but should have water in them when the lakes go dry. Wind action is not as great on ponds constructed below ground.

If you need any technical assistance on your farm problems see your district supervisors or S.C.S. technicians.

A BIT TOO QUICK

It was the raw recruit's first turn of sentry duty. So his voice was rather shaky as he exclaimed:

"Halt! Who goes there?"

Out of the darkness came the startling reply:

"Foe!"

"Have a heart chum," the sentry protested, "I haven't had time to learn the answer to that one yet!"

Insomnia is a rare visitor at our house. There might be several reasons why:

We usually put in a pretty good day's work, and so are ready for rest by the time we get into bed.

We're no longer 16, and consider sleep a luxury as well as a necessity.

Sleeping is easier than thinking about some of the things we'd have to be thinking about if we didn't sleep.

Most of the folks we hear complaining of insomnia are those who stay in bed half the morning, or else retire at 8. They don't really have insomnia, which is defined as "prolonged inability to obtain due sleep."

Snoring is another rare visitor, but occasionally, when the spouse is very tired, he gives quite a concert between 12 and 2. And invariably these rare attacks come when we have insomnia and it's particularly irritating for someone else to be enjoying his rest so audibly.

The last time we had insomnia we looked up snoring. It's breathing during sleep, says the dictionary, "with a rough noise, due to vibration of the uvula and the soft palate." How could two small, soft, harmless organs produce such weird noises?

We had a roommate in college who was a chronic snorer. It rarely struck until deep in the night; and was so terrifying that it always brought us up with a start, sure that murder or mayhem was being committed across the room.

When we were very young, we often slept with Grandmother when there were overnight guests. She was a constant snorer and the sounds she produced were strange and varied. Furthermore, it began when she first lost consciousness and lasted off and on till dawn. That may be why we rarely have insomnia — we're still catching up on our due sleep.

WATER HEATER

Let's face it — a truly clean, sparkling wash is not acquired by so-called "water saving" methods. The "hotter the water, the whiter the wash," with hot water aplenty, are two rules-of-thumb that will do more to assure laundering success than any other single factor. And here's where a GAS water heater shines. Heats MORE water . . . FASTER . . . at LESS COST . . . than any other type of water heater. Any wonder, then, that Smart Moderns go GAS?

Hospital Bill Passes State Senate With Randall County Left Off

A joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment allowing the creation of a hospital district in the City of Amarillo and providing for financial participation of Potter County was passed Monday by the State Senate. It will be sent to the house.

The resolution originally included financial participation in the hospital district by Randall County and also included a joint Potter-Randall juvenile court.

Randall County was dropped from the hospital district portion of the resolution at the request of the Randall County commissioners and by a petition signed by Canyon citizens. The resolution would have provided that a tax of 10 cents per hundred-dollar valuation could be added to property owners in the county to help pay for the hospital.

The juvenile court portion of the resolution would have allowed an additional 10-cent tax for support of the court.

The commissioners asked that the court portion of the resolution be dropped also. However, in a letter to The Canyon News, written before the commissioners acted, Sen. Grady Hazlewood said that "in view of some opposition here on the part of the Texas Railroad Association in regard to the court feature of the bill, I am disposed to cut everything out except the hospital feature."

In Austin Monday, Sen. Hazlewood told a reporter he plans to write the Randall County officials to urge they reconsider their stand. "Twenty-five years from now, Randall County might want to be included in the hospital district—and it will be impossible without a constitutional change."

Three Preachers Here for Observance Of National Brotherhood Week in School

National Brotherhood Week is being observed in the Canyon schools this week in cooperation with the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Robinson Selected Outstanding Senior

Marcus Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Robinson, was selected last week the outstanding Canyon High School senior. She will enter competition in May for the state youth of the year.

The contest is being sponsored by the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

One representative from each of the federated women's clubs in Canyon, Sue Hite, Woman's Book Club and Junior Woman's Book Club, the senior class sponsors and J. E. Miller, principal, selected Marcus as the outstanding youth.

Qualifications upon which the selection was made are leadership, scholarship, talent, honesty, personality, courage and senior classification.

Marcus is among the top 10 students in her class scholastically; she has been exceptionally active in home economics and Future Homemakers of America. She is president of the FHA and district nominee for the state nomination committee.

She is a member of the National Honor Society, treasurer of the senior class, president of choir, captain of the girl's basketball team, and she has held leading roles in both the junior and senior plays.

She has also been active in church work and Rainbows, organization for girls. She is pianist for the Methodist Youth Fellowship in Happy, and this year is grand representative from North Carolina to Texas Order of Rainbow of Girls, Grand Assembly of Texas.

In addition, Marcus has been cited for extemporaneous speaking and has served as toastmistress at school functions.

Mr. and Mrs. John Branom of Cumby, Texas, visited Monday and Tuesday with Mrs. Branom's niece and her niece's husband, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Samples.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Goodman spent the weekend in Austin with their son, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Goodman.

Dickie Lee of Amarillo spent last weekend with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terry.

Wool Jersey Is Versatile, Won't Sag

BY EDNA MILES

Junior fashion wool jersey, left, has wide Puritan collar accented with shiny black bow. This is a one-piece design with two-piece look. Emphasis is on back interest, right, with a self-tie used as continuation of bateau neckline.

WOOL jersey is a fabric loved by American women, probably because it's so versatile. It's cozy to wear to football games or for a weekend in the country. It can go to dinner or the theater, and it can be elegant for an evening out. It's equally right in a simple daytime dress for the office or club meetings. And every woman knows the many uses of the jersey suit.

This year, wool jersey is bigger than ever. It lends itself beautifully to bloused fashions, to the slim (lined) skirt and to all of the many variations on the sheath. It can be basic, for changes in jewelry, little collars and scarves, or it can be dramatic in a vivid color that commands attention.

This year's quality wool jerseys offer a non-sag construction that's an added attraction. The fabric tailors smoothly and is easy to care for. Women who've owned jersey are aware that it's rugged. It takes lots of hard wear and comes back looking as fresh and as new as ever.

Designers have used it, this year, for a wide range of fashions to be worn day and night. Coats and raincoats, too, are cut from wool jersey and make ideal travel companions.

Visits Emphasize Lenten Services

"Sharing Christ" was the theme for the evangelistic home visitation program undertaken by St. Paul Lutheran Church this past Sunday to inaugurate the Lenten season.

Personal visits by husband and wife teams in the homes of members and friends of the Lutheran Church emphasized the congregation's special Lenten services each Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m.

These services, a regular part of the observance of Lent, will this year feature a presentation of the passion and death of Jesus Christ by means of pictures and dramatic narration. This is in keeping with the spirit of the Lenten season during which Christians study the implications of the sufferings, death, and burial of our Lord in preparation for the observance of Easter.

The public is welcomed to attend these services.

Those participating in the visitation program were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kuhlman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kuhlman, Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rathjen, Mr. and Mrs. William Schuette, all of Canyon, and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bauer of Happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Boyer of South Gate, Calif., spent Sunday and Sunday night with Mrs. Mayme Bewley.

AREA CAGED LAYER BUSINESS EXPANDING

Two Hereford Poultrymen Grow Cage Layer Replacements

Development of the caged layer business is creating a demand and developing a related phase of the chicken business that is extending the poultry industry of this area.

Two Hereford men are engaged in raising replacement layers and providing local caged layer poultrymen with an available supply. D W. Maddox and Sylvester Slagle have found great promise in this angle of making this area self-sufficient in egg production.

Presently, Maddox has birds ranging in age from chicks to hens. He sells about 250 cage layers per week. Slagle's installation can care for 1200 birds.

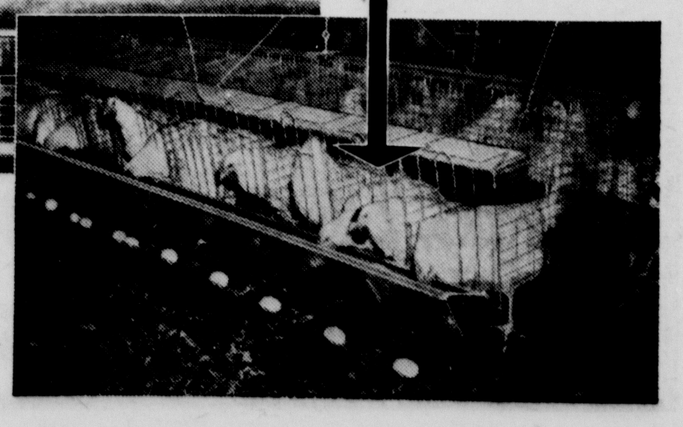
The basis of Maddox's caged layer raising is three electric battery brooders with a capacity for 3600 chicks. In addition, he has six brooding rooms and one caged layer house. The bright future of raising replacement caged layers has caused Maddox to plan an expansion program which will double his present establishment. This program calls for five more brooding houses and additional caged layer space.

Slagle and Maddox started their replacement layer businesses about a year ago. Slagle's initial installation was one 1200 capacity electric battery brooder. His facilities permit him to market 1200 layers every 14 weeks. Both replacement growers feel that electric power is necessary for profitable brooding.

Maddox cages all layers before they sell and keeps a complete record on the egg production of each hen. These records aid poultrymen in their selection of replacement layers.

Both men agree that there is great promise for raising replacement layers, and that an establishment such as theirs can meet a demand and add much to the local poultry industry.

Above, D. W. Maddox shows one of his three 1200 capacity, thermostatically controlled, electric brooders, which maintains a constant temperature. With electricity on the job, the chicks require only a few minutes per day to feed, water, and clean the brooder.



Maddox aides poultrymen in their selection of replacement layers by maintaining production records which indicates the bird's laying pattern.

Nu Phi Mu Officers Installed In Formal, Candlelight Ritual

The ballroom of Cousins Hall was the scene of a formal candlelight installation ceremony Feb. 26 when 36 members were installed into a Nu Phi Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

New officers of the chapter are Mary Ann Dawdy, president; Betty Jane Stephens, vice president; Mrs. Bill McDonald, treasurer; and Sheila Lemons, recording secretary.

Mrs. Jack Spurlock was installed as social sponsor, and Billie Bee Flesher of Xi Eta chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, Amarillo, was inducted as chapter advisor.

The chapter will receive its Greek name from Kansas City, Mo., this week.

Mrs. Rolettea Y. Taylor, international representative of the sorority from Kansas City, officiated at the ritual. The following girls were initiated into the chapter:

Wynelle Lightsey, Janice Williams, Karen Buchanan, Shirley Fiskin, Shirley Elms, Virginia Davis, Sharon Washburn, Sandra Noblitt, Patsy Thomas, Pauline Darling, Eva Mae Parks, Odetta Ball, Bettie Jackson, Linda Pennington, Mary Gruhlkey, Shirley Smith, La Verne Worley, Sandra Patton, Patricia Hilton, Pluma Jo Metcalf, Elizabeth Taylor and Barbara Pinnell.

Mrs. John Mason, Mrs. Larry Sparks, Mrs. Don Vance, Mrs. Jim Perkins, Mrs. Jim Boyd, Mrs. Don Hickman, Mrs. Jerry Johnigan, Mrs. Farrell Devenport and Mrs. Dick Haar.

The installation ceremony was held by the light of blue tapers, which stood in crystal holders. The table was centered with a bowl of pink roses, which is the sorority flower.

At the close of the evening, punch and cookies were served during a social hour.

Kuehler Competes For Scholarship

Alby Ann Kuehler has been selected from this district as an entrant in competition for one of three state 4-H scholarships which are offered annually by home demonstration women.

A three-member judging committee composed of Leta Bennitt, district agent, Mrs. Lowin Mason, College Station, and Mrs. C. K. Burkley, 4-H scholarship chairman of T.H.D.A., will visit Alby Ann and her family Monday afternoon and observe the work she has done in the field of homemaking.

If chosen she will be one of three selected to receive a $500 scholarship. The three scholastic aids are the Helen H. Swift, the Maggie W. Berry and the T.H.D.A. scholarships.

Mrs. Claude Mahle is visiting Mrs. Carl Hair and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Mahle.

Relay Starts

Canyon's Harlie Adams, third from left, paces three Hereford runners at the beginning of the first lap of the 440-yard relay in a track meet Thursday between Hereford and Canyon. Canyon's team came in last in the race due to a dropped baton on the back stretch.

Son Finds Mother's Attire Shocking But She Is The Hostess with Mostest

Loose waist dresses and big, ornamented hats may be the decree from the fashion world, but one home demonstration woman found such garb didn't make such a hit with her young son.

Last week, at an Arrowpoint Home Demonstration Club meeting, the women staged an unusual program, a tacky party. But, when the hostess, Mrs. Frank Ham, appeared in her 1920's costume, her son fled from her in fright.

Her attire? Simply the latest from the attic, which was a loose, "sack" dress and a big, purple hat embroidered with fabric flowers. For the final effect, she added a few heavy touches with her eyebrow pencil.

The rest of the women were just as terrifying to the young lad as he made the rounds of the room crying, "Mama, mama," because he knew that strange looking lady was no blood-kin of his.

Mrs. Frank Morgan appeared in a costume strikingly reminiscent of the roaring Twenties. Her long-waisted, flapper styled dress was of black taffeta, trimmed in black velvet and she wore long-stem roses on a black, straw hat.

The dress came from an exclusive Denver shop, she said, and cost $8.

The prize-winning costume was worn by Mrs. Tony Collison. Her strange ensemble was black torredor pants, ankle-strap, high-heel shoes with blue anklets, purple sweater and beads. Her accessories were black velvet gloves, a pink taffeta lampshade trimmed in red roses (they claim the latest hats resemble such; why not wear one?) and a yellow jonquil corsage.

Her prize of a white frosted cake turned out to be quite a surprise. Mrs. Collison has now had the unique experience of tasting cornbread and seven-minute frosting.

WASHINGTON AND
"SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

There is every indication temper of new Congress will be somewhat different than those of past few years. The outcry by Rep. Alvin O'Kronski (Rep., Wis.) against bringing Communist Tito to U. S. for visit was just one indication that at the grass roots level the American conscience again is on the march.

C. W. Harder

* * *

By now, monopoly business has received all governmental favors it can expect. Monopoly business has been well paid by government for past favors.

* * *

Now comes time for an American Reconstruction, every bit as important as the one that followed Appotomax in 1865.

* * *

There is no doubt in minds of many Congressmen nation's future lies in keeping open freedom for private enterprise.

* * *

Yet for at least 20 years governmental action has encouraged monopoly growth.

* * *

Provisions of tax laws, handling of credit, awarding of government contracts, Washington's obsession with internationalism, have all had affect of stacking deck against free enterprise.

* * *

As matter of fact, monopoly business has even had special tax considerations.

* * *

They have been able to build new facilities through a provision providing for rapid depreciation of these facilities so that they can be paid for out of current profits. Small business has been denied this opportunity to expand.

* * *

While Federal Trade Commission has spent untold thousands, and probably millions, of man hours in holding hearings, too much effort has been expended on prosecuting small firms whose combined assets would probably equal only a small percentage of the assets of just one of the huge oil companies FTC has alleged is engaged in a worldwide conspiracy to rig oil prices.

* * *

Painstakingly, FTC worked up an exhaustive report on the world petroleum monopoly, then buried it. It almost took an act of Congress to get it made public.

* * *

Yet, in the intervening four years, very little effective steps have been taken in this direction.

* * *

In other words, only most feeble attempts have been made to preserve fairness in the market place, although there has been a super abundance of lip service in this direction.

* * *

But there has been one flaw in the monopoly-favoring strategy pursued by government bureaus. They have not fooled anyone. Best evidence of this fact is that at nominating conventions last summer, both parties adopted in their platforms the strongest small business planks in history.

* * *

Thus both parties are committed to do something about the persecution of American independent business. The problem has been recognized. In many spheres the problems have been defined. All that is needed now is action.

Golden Deed, Indeed!

The nation's railroads through the years have been good neighbors in most instances—extending aid, financial and otherwise, to their friends and neighbors and to their country in times of emergency.

More than that, railroads generally have assumed the role of citizen—active and participating—in the communities they serve.

$25,000,000 Contribution ...to Farmers and Ranchers

Within the past four years the railroads have contributed to the farmers, ranchers and dairymen, through a 50% reduction in rates on hay and other feedstuffs, 25 million dollars.

Both the Congress of the United States and the Legislature of Texas, by resolution, have expressed their thanks to the railroads for this substantial contribution.

Through the years the railroads have always extended a helping hand to their neighbors in times of disaster.

To us this is a basic responsibility of good Americans.

Hurrah for the polio vaccine day last week. It was a huge success —1567 people received the shots.

And the men, who were the ones not getting polio vaccine shots, rolled up their sleeves in a goodly number; 319 men 20 years or older, to be definite. A pretty good percentage.

Those that didn't take advantage of the $1 rate at least were reminded to get a shot. Receptionists at the Medical and Dental Clinic and at Neblett Hospital said people continued to come in the day after mass inoculation and get shots at regular price.

It really kept the doctors and nurses busy, but they could get the people shots and on their way in nothing flat.

The nurse who gave my shot was a real speed demon. If I had blinked my eyes I might have missed the whole thing. No, on second thought, I believe I would have known exactly what happened.

Congratulations to the Westside Home Demonstration Club who got the ball rolling on the polio project. Mona Hildreth, HD agent, said they were mighty happy about the results, and justly so.

Don't forget the second vaccine day, March 21.

Very wonderful open house at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon.

Not only are the new, attractive rooms in the education addition welcome space, but all the rooms in the original building have a sparkle and shine, especially the nursery and primary rooms which have new paint and cleverly printed curtains.

And the children who cried to remain and play in the nursery must be proof of the pudding.

If your family likes enchiladas, but you hate the mess and worry of making them, you might try Martha Warren's recipe. She saw this in a Phoenix newspaper, an original from a woman living there.

Lazy Enchiladas

18 corn tortillas
1 medium onion chopped fine
3 cups grated cheese
1 No. 2 (large) can enchilada sauce
1 can "El Patio" sauce, or for a milder dish, 1 can tomato sauce
4 T. bacon drippings
Salt to taste
Ground meat, about 1 pound

Cut or break tortillas in small pieces. Heat drippings in large fry pan, add tortillas and onion and saute for a few minutes. Add browned ground meat, place in baking dish, sprinkle with cheese and bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Martha adds the ground meat, but it was not in the original recipe. She browns it in a separate pan before adding it to the other ingredients. She also waits until the last five minutes to add the cheese.

According to Martha, this recipe really makes a lot, but it does freeze fine before or after baking.

She said she especially likes this recipe to serve the family because it is easy for the boys to eat. She simply places the baking dish on the table and with it serves a salad and beverage.

It's almost uncanny the way youngsters are sure to come up with a bright remark when company comes, perhaps embarrassing to parents and delightfully amusing to the guests.

Martha Warren agrees and relates a time when company came to dinner. While everyone was eating, one of the boys said, very politely, "Please pass the potatoes with the grass on 'em."

He had never said it before, she added.

At the Canyon faculty-business men basketball game Friday night the Coons (town men) nearly got treed. But all came out well, except for maybe next day's aches and pains.

I bet there was a lot of linament rubbing here and there.

The downtown ladies who led the cheers—Mrs. C. L. Buchanan, Mrs. Jack Swatzel, Mrs. L. F. Brandon, Mrs. Andy Anderson, Mrs. Bob Bellah—found it a little hard to get out of bed the next morning, too, I hear.

The folks in the 2400 block on Eighth Avenue and quite a few other places in town can't figure out whether their neighbors are fiends or friends. Anyway, they've all got the smell, and they'll stick it out together through clothespin and shut doors and let's hope they find it a fertile experience.

(Fertilizer, you know).

List Reasons for Child Care Error

This is the eighth in a series of 12 articles prepared by the Internal Revenue Service to assist taxpayers in avoiding tax errors that cause "Pre-Refund Audits." Previous articles have set out the disadvantages of having your return contain questionable items that would require the Internal Revenue Service to select it for audit.

Today we are presenting the five most common reasons for the Internal Revenue Service having to adjust CHILD CARE EXPENSE:

(1) For a married couple, unless the husband is incapable of self-support because he is physically or mentally defective, child care expense must be reduced by the amount by which the combined adjusted gross incomes of wife and husband exceeds $4,500. A joint return must be filed.

(2) A man may deduct child care expense only if he is a widower at the time the expense is incurred.

(3) To be deductible child care expense must be incurred while the taxpayers are gainfully employed or seeking gainful employment and is limited to the expenses incurred for child care prior to the time his child reached 12 years of age.

(4) Child care expense is limited to $600.

(5) The expense of a maid who cares for a child must be allocated between child care and maid expense.

We are repeating again today the advantages of becoming better informed on income tax matters. The study of your tax instructions cannot be over-emphasized.

If you are interested in preparing a correct tax return that will pay the government all the tax due but at the same time take all the deductions and allowances to which you are entitled, you should order "Your Federal Income Tax - 1956" at the U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., for 30 cents acopy.

The amount of tax you pay is determined by your business and personal activities throughout the year.

The Internal Revenue Service feels that your being well informed on tax matters will be of benefit to you and to the government.

In the next article, we will present errors taxpayers make in miscellaneous deductions.

First in the low-price field with 2 big-car sizes, a contoured frame and an all-new "inner car," the luxurious '57 Ford brings you longer, lower, livelier going than ever before

Comfort and "sighs" come king-size in the '57 Ford. That's because Ford alone in the low-price field is so wonderfully new all the way through.

The all-new frame, for instance, dips down and out between the wheels for extra passenger comfort, smooth going. Even most high-priced cars don't have this revolutionary new frame yet.

Power? Sure, all cars offer V-8's. But Ford has 22 years more V-8 experience than any other car at the price. And only Ford offers the Thunderbird's own engine.

You have to see those long, low, sculptured lines to appreciate Ford's "Look of Tomorrow." And you have to get behind the wheel to feel the inner beauty of this new kind of Ford.
